from the pastor's heart

God has been continually reminding us in this week's readings of the prayer booklet that as his children, we have to reject compromise and make a stand for truth and righteousness when dealing with the people, things and events around us. When faced with confusion and controversies we have to act on our principles to speak up for those who are victimized – to not be a hypocrite before God and man. This to us individually and as a church, is a challenge as well as a lesson in humility for transformation. This process of life transformation has to start with each one of us and the goal is to become like Christ.

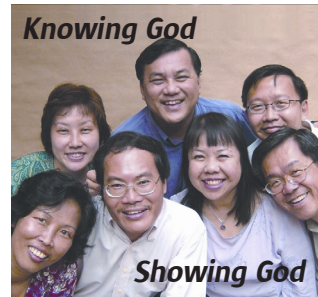

Those closest to us, like our family and colleagues, will be the ones most able to observe and encounter the changes in our inner life. When others receive care and blessings through relating to us, then our every word and conduct will influence them – how we respond to current trends and issues, the way we manage finances and even the serious attitude we have towards relationships with the opposite sex will be plain for all to see.

May God have grace and mercy on us to renounce every false image that we have built for ourselves and instead establish with us a relationship to become a people anointed with power. People who steadfastly live out pure and holy lives that will impact those around them, so that transformation will take place in Singapore. As we celebrate the National Day of our nation, let us pray for peace and prosperity, for a sense of rootedness and unity among the peoples that will translate into commitment towards our country. May we make a difference here so that all who live in this land will move with us into a journey of life transformation. Amen.

church prayer agenda

Few gave tiny Singapore much chance of survival when independence was thrust upon it in 1965. Without any natural resources or established industries, it was only natural, had Singapore become a bankrupt city. But against all odds, this formerly British trading post has today grown to be a thriving Asian metropolis; a first world country with one of the world's highest per capita income. Standing at the threshold of our nation's 44th birthday, it's only right for us to acknowledge that God has made this possible, and to give God our deepest thanks on behalf of our Singapore.

1) Let's unite with a grateful heart to acknowledge and thank God that

- His strong hand has guided us through good times and bad the past 44 years;
- He strengthened the bars of our city gates, and granted us peace and prosperity;
- He protected us from forces beyond our control, and blessed the people within;
- He satisfied us with the finest of resources and achievements;
- He would also lead us safely through the present crisis, like He did before.

2) We humble ourselves to ask God to pour out His Spirit on this Land. Grant us singleness of heart and action to always fear Him, and walk in His ways for our own good, and the good of our children after us.

3) On this special occasion, let's dedicate ourselves and our beloved nation Singapore to God. Let Singapore come under God, and crown Him Sovereign Lord and King over this Land.
